ATTENDING VETERINARIAN AND ADEQUATE VETERINARY CARE (DEALERS AND EXHIBITORS).

The Program of Veterinary Care (PVC) was found to be incomplete and missing information on appropriate methods to deliver adequate veterinary care. The licensee's written PVC must include and establish regularly scheduled visits by the attending veterinarian (AV). Also, the veterinary methods to deliver adequate veterinary care to animals were generic and unspecific. In order to provide adequate veterinary care to regulated animals, the licensee and the AV should review and update the PVC by listing specific and detailed information on all preventive, diagnose and treatment methods for all species.

DIRECT NCI

ATTENDING VETERINARIAN AND ADEQUATE VETERINARY CARE (DEALERS AND EXHIBITORS).

Two of eleven performing dogs inspected, exhibited significant redness and some bleeding at their gums. Also, many teeth at their upper jaws showed gritty material and increased yellow stains. The use of appropriate methods to prevent, control, diagnoses, and treat diseases and injuries in regulated animals is paramount to provide adequate veterinary care. The licensee must consult the attending veterinarian and seek veterinary dental care for the affected dogs as soon as possible.
